SEIZED BY SPANISH
REBEL CRUISERSoyuz Bodikou Reported As Being Held Captive
At Ceuta

FELT GRAVE CONCERN

Word of the Capture Radioed
To Washington
TodayBy Robert G. Nixon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Seized by a Spanish rebel cruiser as it steamed past the Straits of Gibraltar, the Russian freighter, Soyuz Bodikou, was reported held captive today under frowning guns of the rebel port of Ceuta, in Spanish Morocco.

Word of the capture, sent to Washington by radio, aroused grave concern over possible international consequences. As the Soviet vessel cruised into the Mediterranean, according to the report received here, it was sighted and stopped by the rebel warships. The freighter stopped only after a warning shot was fired across its bow. A boarding party was put over the side by the cruiser, and then the freighter was sent to the nearby port.

Ceuta's Spanish Moroccan port, across the Straits of Gibraltar, has been the base of the Spanish insurgent leader, General Francisco Franco, in his campaign against the loyalist government.

Capture of the freighter was understood to have been witnessed by a United States warship, members of the European Squadron, which has been stationed in Spanish waters since shortly after the Spanish civil war flared up on July 17th.

The Soviet and Spanish embassies professed to have no knowledge of the vessel, but it was confirmed unofficially. Whether the freighter was loaded with munitions and war supplies to aid the loyalists, was not definitely known. The report radioed to Washington was a terse message, giving only the bare facts of the capture and internment of the vessel at Ceuta.

The incident aroused grave fears that it might set off the spark of intervention in the Spanish civil war, thus far held in abeyance by a non-intervention pact agreed to by the powers. It was expected here that the Soviet government might demand immediate release of the ship. The seizure raised a serious question of international law. The Soviet freighter is the first foreign vessel to be seized in the Spanish civil war.

MADRID, Nov. 13.—(INS)—Giving new hope to shell-shattered Madrid, military officials here told today of a powerful loyalist "mystery army" that is fighting its way up from the south to relieve the nationalists' pressure on the capital.

General Antonio Mija, chief of the Loyalist defense commissariat, told International News Service that the southern column had already clashed with the enemy, but he would not reveal the site of the battle nor the source and strength of the "mystery army."

It indicated, however, that the main rebel strength is not now being concentrated on Madrid, but is fighting to ward off this fresh threat to its rear, probably along the thin line of communications in the Toledo sector.

The rebel line is exposed all through southern and eastern Toledo province and Madrid province.

A rebel radio broadcast picked up here also admitted that a Loyalist column is advancing northward in an attempt to attack the insurgent rear and flank.

Heavy Loyalist concentrations of two-centimeter anti-tank guns with expert crews were said to have had an

EXCHANGE SPEAKER
DISCUSSES EUROPEE. C. Ramsay Speaker at The Weekly Meeting of Bristol
Service Club

AN INTERESTING TALK

A noted journalist, traveler, and commentator on Europe, E. C. Ramsay, was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Bristol Exchange Club, held in the Elks' Home here last evening.

Ramsay painted a word picture of most of the major countries of Europe, and discussed their problems and difficulties. Because of his close association with conditions in Europe and many other parts of the world, this lecturer is in great demand wherever he goes. He has spent 16 years living in Europe.

Ramsay, who is a newspaper man by training, spoke briefly on all of the countries of Europe last evening. He mentioned the democratic countries in northern Europe, Russia, the Balkan States, France, Central States, England, Spain, and Portugal.

Speaking of Russia, Ramsay declared that there is no longer a real communism in Russia, although it still goes under that name. "Russia is now functioning under a system of state capitalism," he said.

Ramsay also pointed out that in spite of the efforts for peace, all Europe is arming. "There are three million more armed men in Europe today than there were at any time during the World War," the speaker declared.

Speaking of the Spanish revolution now in progress, Ramsay predicted that if the rebels win, France will have a civil war before the end of the year.

"Every part of Europe is tense. All countries are arming for peace! If another European conflict should break out, Europe has the possibilities of annihilating itself, and if this should happen then the black race and the yellow race would step in and become supreme."

Ramsay predicted, also, that within five years Italy and Mussolini would be crawling at the feet of England for the humiliation which Italy caused England during the recent Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

SAN FRANCISCO BRIDGE REACHES COMPLETION"We Are Not Going to Lose
77 Lives on This Job!" Said
Chief Engineer

Result of Safety Precaution; Rules Required "Under Penalty"

(Note: This is the third of a series of three articles on the famous $77,000,000 San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge—the largest span in the world—which opened yesterday.)

By Harold Heroux
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—In the construction world, it is an unwritten law that the life of one workman must be forfeited for each million dollars spent!

When engineers for the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge—which opened yesterday—finished their cost estimates a few years ago, they arrived at the figure of $77,000,000.

C. H. Purcell, chief engineer for the bridge, gathered every contractor around him when work started and said:

"We are not going to lose 77 lives on this job! Let's smash the old bugaboo!"

With the gigantic job of linking two of the Pacific Coast's most important cities by an 8½ mile bridge completed, Purcell and his aides look back—with mingled reactions—to the casualty toll. Twenty-three workmen lost their lives!

Purcell is happy because the death toll fell far short of the anticipated toll of 77. And, he is sad because he feels, that with a little more caution, no lives would have been lost at all.

"To meet the perils of this job we had a veritable safety campaign, but let me say that I found on the part of engineers and contractors a sort of reluctance to utilize safety measures," Purcell said.

"This reluctance, or this resistance to safety appliances, extends from the bottom man to the top man."

"The lowest member of a bridge crew despised safety jackets, safety hats, and safety shoes, and had to be required under compulsion to wear them."

In this connection, Purcell said, he provided the compulsion. Men were required, on penalty of being immediately discharged, to wear a sort of fabric and bakelite skull-protecting hat somewhat similar to the helmets worn by the soldiers in the World War.

Where men were not working too high above the water, Purcell required that they wear kapok vests which had a sort of Queen Anne collar to keep the men upright and floating in the water.

Shoes were required to have steel caps over the toes, on the substructure work, to prevent fractured digits.

Farmer To Re-enact Details
At Scene of Fatal Shooting

John W. Simons, Red Lion and Knights Roads, Torresdale, arrested following the shooting of George Doble, Philadelphia, Wednesday morning, is to be taken to the scene of the affair and to re-enact just what occurred.

Simons claims that the shooting was an accident and continued to tell this story at the hearing held in the Tacony Police Court, Philadelphia, yesterday.

The grief-stricken father of Doble yesterday tried twice to rush upon Simons, while the latter sat in the witness chair of Tacony Police Court protesting that he shot the youth entirely by accident.

The elder Doble, George W., almost broke away from restraining police when a witness testified:

"I saw this man (Simons) catch the boy. He went over and picked up the gun and I heard him say, 'Now it's my time to shoot.'"

"Did you say that? Did you say that?" demanded the dead boy's father, lurching forward.

Police had to restrain him as well as hostile spectators who pressed toward the witness stand.

The accusing witness was Anderson Corke, of Camac street and Nedro avenue, Philadelphia, who said he was nearby when Simons shot the 19-year-old boy Wednesday on the bank of Poqueessing Creek.

The creek is the dividing line between Philadelphia and Simons' farm at Knights road and Red Lion road, Torresdale, where young Doble was gunning with a friend. When they fired at Simons' pigeons the farmer came on the run.

Corke's brother, Frank, another witness, was not sure that Simons had said "Now it's my time to shoot."

"But you heard him say that?" said Magistrate Dougherty, turning to Anderson Corke.

"Yes," said the witness, and again Doble tried to rush upon Simons.

Magistrate Dougherty held Simons for the coroner despite his reiteration of his story that Doble's gun, which he was carrying, went off accidentally while he was taking him to his house with the intention of turning him over to the police.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1936

IMPERIAL ANNIVERSARY

Six years ago, the world became keenly aware of the existence of the ancient kingdom of Abyssinia. True, a country named Abyssinia had been on the map for years and years; but it was thought of as a wild and remote region. In many minds, Abyssinia was associated with two things: Samuel Johnson's book, Rasselas, and the overwhelming defeat of an Italian expeditionary force at Adowa before the turn of the century.

Then, in November, 1930, Ras Tafari, the energetic and progressive ruler of Abyssinia, was crowned with great pomp and ceremony as Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia. Correspondents of American and European newspapers attended and the world was given detailed descriptions of the picturesque and barbaric splendor of the coronation rites. The combination of ancient tradition and primitive civilization caught the imagination of many to whom Abyssinia and Ethiopia had been only names. Everyone agreed that the modern emperor of the ancient land fully grasped the possibilities of national publicity.

Six years to the day after those stirring ceremonies at Addis Ababa, a bearded, swarthy little man with a sensitive, aquiline face boarded a London train at Bath, England. He traveled first class but without any state ceremonial. Haile Selassie, deposed emperor, was on his way to the Ethiopian legation where he spent the night of his coronation anniversary, before returning to the legation desk at which he transacts such official business as comes before an emperor in exile.

HOT ENOUGH THERE

Inasmuch as no one is ever likely to have occasion to go there, it does not make much difference that down about 180 miles from the surface of the earth it is just as hot now as it was when the globe began to cool off. But that is one of those somewhat interesting if somewhat useless conclusions reached through calculations of scientists. Dr. L. H. Adams of Carnegie Institution's geo-physical laboratory tells us that the heat of earth's dense, semi-plastic iron core had been estimated at 5,432 degrees Fahrenheit.

The age of the earth, as estimated by measuring the amount of the radio-active element uranium which has broken down to lead, was about 1,500,000,000 years, Dr. Adams said, while "from astronomical observations an upper limit of 3,000,000,000 years is indicated."

Analysis of data collected by the geologist, the physicist, the seismologist and the mathematician makes possible deductions on how temperature varies with depth. "Especially striking is the conclusion that below about 180 miles the temperature is nearly the same as it was originally; the greater part of the earth is now as hot as it was when solidification first took place," the Carnegie scientist asserted.

It may interest us to remember all that in those days, now so close at hand, when the chill of zero winds got into the marrow of our bones and we shiver and shake only 180 miles from unaltered heat.

A question arises at Princeton: how to determine if a foot ball fan is drunk. If he takes a wild swing at another 15 rows away, it is significant.

PORTRAYS CHARACTERS FROM "JOAN OF ARC" FOR MEMBERS OF CLUB

Miss Margaret Lehman Gives Excellent Presentation For Junior Travel Club

An excellent presentation of the various characters in certain scenes from "Joan of Arc" was given by Miss Margaret Lehman, Doylestown, last evening, at a meeting of the Junior Travel Club in the club home on Cedar street. The portrayal of the characters in this well known play, as well as those from other contemporary dramas, brought both laughter and tears to the eyes of the audience, so well did Miss Lehman make the presentation. She was highly complimented at the conclusion of her interesting address also. Miss Lehman is head of the English department of Doylestown high school.

Miss Anne Jeffries, president of the Junior Club, introduced those taking part in the evening program. The audience was composed of a large number of Juniors, and several seniors who as a group had been invited to attend the affair.

Vocal soli by Mrs. Donald Moyer included "Lassie O' Mine" and the Sextet from "Lucia."

SILVER HALTS FLOOD

SHANGHAI (INS)—Bars of silver were used by a local bank to stem the rush of muddy river water when Shanghai experienced one of its worst floods in many years. As the water surged into the business district, there was a general rush for material for building barriers. Many offices were soon protected by the usual sandbags and similar protective devices, but the bank, not being equipped with any of these things, piled silver bars against the door and successfully kept the water out.

BENSALEM GIRLS SUCCESSFUL AT HOCKEY

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 13.—As the hockey season draws to a close a survey of the progress made by Bensalem High School girls indicates an excellent start in this type of sport.

Introduced at Bensalem for the first time in its history this fall, the response has been enthusiastic. Although no games have been scheduled for this year there were more than 40 girls out for the sport.

It is possible, however, that the game will play a role in the intramural contests which are held each year at the High School.

The prolonging of hockey for the remainder of this season depends solely upon the weather; if the weather becomes bad, basketball practice will be started earlier than expected.

Miss Helen M. Smith, gym teacher at the High School, has been in charge of the hockey squad. Practices are held in the afternoon after school.

Among those to turn out for the new game at Bensalem were seven senior girls, 14 juniors, five sophomores, six freshmen, five eighth graders, and three seventh graders—the first time that the seventh graders have been out for sports.

ST. ANN'S GRIDDERS PREPARE FOR TILT

The St. Ann's A. A. gridders will be well prepared for their tilt with the Cedar Grove eleven which will be played Sunday afternoon on Landreth field. At the practice session last night, all the players reported and are anxiously waiting the whistle which will spring them into action.

The slight injury suffered by "Henry" Kornstedt in the Glenside game will not affect him and he is ready. Kornstedt played a wonderful game for the "Saints" against the Glensiders, being in almost every play and showing his old-time skill in breaking up the power attack of the boys of Leon Whitlock.

The heavy rain and muddy field prevented the St. Ann's attack from functioning and the new plays drilled last week were not used. However, Coach Dougherty instructed his quarterbacks to use every deceptive play against the Cedar Grove team to give the local fans the opportunity of seeing real blocking and ball-carrying.

important part in checking the nationalists.

"We can hold out at this rate for a week," Gen. Miajo told me following a meeting of the military junta.

Reconnoitering Madrid airmen returned with reports of large concentra-tations of troops at Carabanchel, three miles below the city.

Under the daily bombardment from rebel artillery emplacements, two huge fires are raging in the western section of the city, and the Madrid gas works has been blazing for three days.

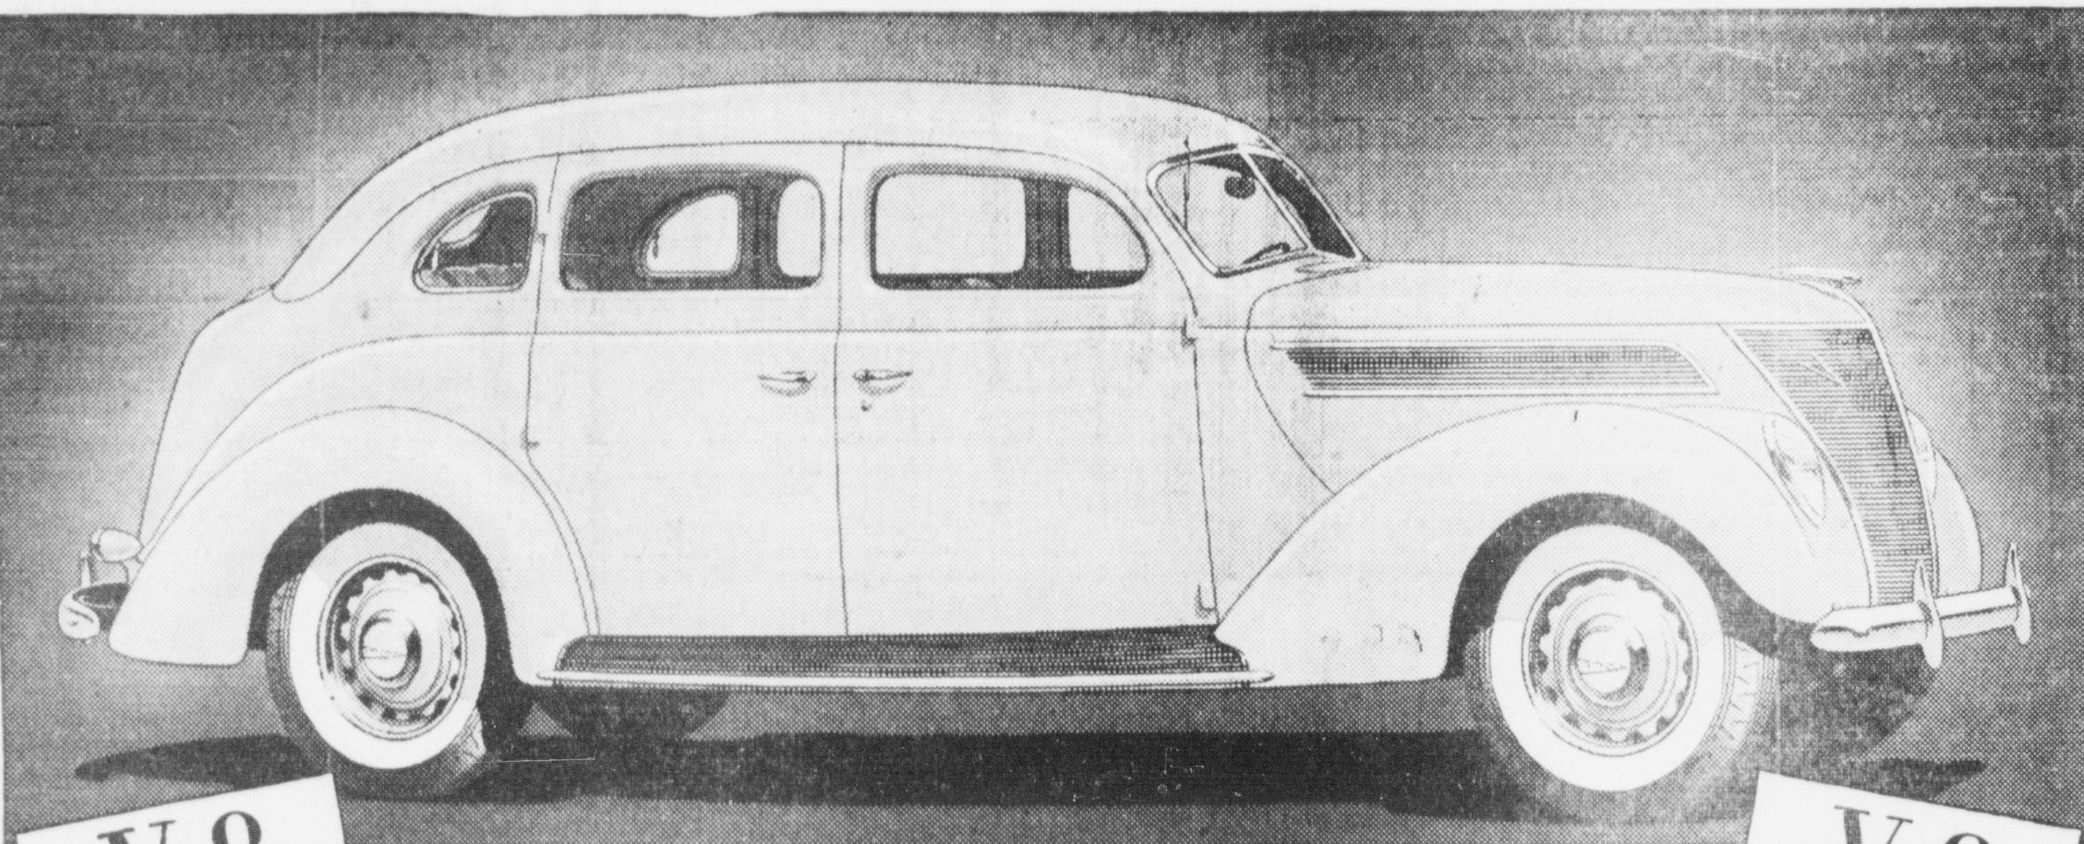

To counteract the reported effect of the southern Loyalist column, the rebels today announced they were sending the Soria division under Col. Maroso to the Guadalajara sector, with artillery and tank support to withdraw some of the defending troops from Madrid.

When you drive the 1937 Ford powered with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine, you are master of a modern power plant that gives you everything you can possibly demand in speed and acceleration. It is a better engine than ever—with a better cooling system and new smoothness of operation. Yet improved carburetion enables it to deliver its thrilling performance with unusually good gasoline mileage.

New 60-horsepower engine—Drive it and watch the fuel gage!

The new 60-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine is almost an exact replica of the "85"—except for size, weight and power. It delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy in modern motor car operation.

We invite you to see this new Ford car, and arrange to drive one equipped with the engine that fits your own needs.

NEW FEATURES OF THE 1937 FORD V-8 CAR

APPEARANCE—A newly designed car—wide and roomy, with a low center of gravity. Distinctive front end, with headlamps recessed in fender aprons. Modern light-type hood hinged at the back. Larger luggage space. Spare tire enclosed within body. Completely new interiors. The slanting V-type windshield opens in closed cars.

ENGINES—A choice of the improved V-8 85-horsepower engine or the new V-8 60-horsepower engine. More efficient cooling. Quieter performance. New economy.

COMFORT AND QUIET—By every modern standard of design, the 1937 Ford V-8 is a big, roomy car. Extra space is in the body, where you want it—not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Ford Center-Poise Ride is further increased by smoother action of the long-tapering springs, with new pressure lubrication. New methods of mounting body and engine make this a quieter car.

SAFETY

BRAKES—New Easy-Action Safety Brakes, of the cable and conduit control type. Positive and direct—"the safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Self-energizing—car momentum is used to help apply the brakes. About one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

BODY—All-steel body construction. Not an ounce of wood used for structural strength. Frame structure is all steel—sheathed with steel panels, top, sides and floor. All are welded into a single steel unit of great protective strength. Safety Glass all around at no extra charge.
